

Contributing to society by developing professionals

TAC's principle business is to develop professionals. The English word "profession" is derived from the word "profess" which means to declare oneself before God. In the Middle Ages in Europe, specialists such as priests, lawyers, accountants, doctors, teachers and engineers declared themselves before God in order to perform their professions. People who became professionals by the grace of God had to bear a great responsibility towards society and have the best of morals. TAC is aiming not only to enhance the skills of existing professionals, but also to contribute to Japanese society "as a company that creates professionals" by raising the new professionals needed in this new era.

2025-2026

TAC

Appropriately judge "now" and continue to fulfill our responsibility for the "future"

Japan has achieved rapid economic development focusing on the manufacturing industry, and in the modern age, it has made innovation by combining advanced knowledge and information technology. And now Japan is trying to achieve further economic development by creating products and services optimized for each sector and responding to complicated and diversified needs.

The people who are always needed by society in the process of economic development in any age are those with specialized knowledge in each field. They are called "professions". The content of the specialized knowledge required will, of course, change according to the change of the times, but the existence of "professions" with specialized knowledge is indispensable in the past, present and future. Since its establishment in 1980, TAC has nurtured and produced many "professions" that are needed from time to time. Starting from the accounting and taxation area, it now extends to law, real estate, financial services, public officer and labor, IT, medical, and science areas.

We want to contribute to the development of society by fostering the diverse "professions" needed in the current times while keeping a close watch on the changes of the times.
